Popsicle pleasure

Some kids really know how to enjoy a Popsicle. Youngsters at the Shawsheen School in Wilmington had a field day on Tuesday and Wednesday this week. These kindergarten children took a Popsicle break on a hill behind the school. Of the three boys in front, Joey Tammara and Lou Genetti are busy eating their popsicles. Sean

Moroney (right) seems to have just taken a cold bite of his Popsicle. In the center photo, Joey and Lou are still licking their Popsicles, and Sean is obviously enjoying himself a whole lot. At right, Sean has now discovered that the ultimate way to enjoy a Popsicle is to lay back and watch the sky. (Photos by Larz F. Neilson)

Michael Caira named temporary town manager

by Arlene Surprenant
Town Moderator Michael Caira was appointed Wilmington's temporary town manager in a close three to two vote of the board of selectmen Friday night. Despite loud grumblings from supporters of Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hull, selectmen chose to hire Caira, the only finalist with no actual municipal experience.

The finalists, Caira, Hull, and former Andover Town Manager Jared Clark, were individually interviewed in half hour sessions and questioned on such things as their qualifications, the upcoming Prop 2 1/2 override, and their salary expectations.

During the interviews, selectmen said they were seeking a person, with strong leadership qualities, financial ability, and people skills. Both Chester Bruce and Chairman Bob Doucette wanted someone who would be viewed as "non-political." Caira said he was seeking a person who would be able to continue as permanent manager. In fact, Caira said later that he told selectmen he would only apply for the temporary job if he would be considered for the permanent position. He said he received that assurance.

Robert Cain, Dan Ballou, and Mark Haldane voted for Caira. Bruce and Doucette voted in favor of Hull. When Cain urged the board to cast a unanimous vote for Caira, Bruce said he preferred to abstain, making the second vote four to zero for Caira.

All three finalists have a varied background in administration. Clark had the most experience in municipal management. Clark has held various jobs in municipal government, the most recent being temporary town manager in Andover. He was Andover's permanent town manager from 1978 to 1981. Clark also worked in the private sector in the 1980's as a computer sales rep and marketing manager for such companies as IBM, Nixdorf Computer Corporation, and Wang Labs. He holds a bachelors degree from Wilmington College in Ohio and a masters degree in government administration from the University of Pennsylvania.

Hull served as Administrative Assistant in Ayer from 1983 to 1987 and Wilmington's assistant manager for the past 2 1/2 years. He said he was experienced in all aspects of town government except large development projects. Hull holds a bachelors degree in business administration from Bryant College in Rhode Island and a masters degree in public administration from Northeastern University.

Though he's never managed town government, Caira has an administrative background in state government, and political and non-profit organizations. From 1975 to 1981 he was Business Administrator of Metropolitan State Hospital and later administrative assistant to the commissioner of the Division of Capital Planning and Operations. He also served in the office of Governor Francis Sargent in the early 1970's.

Caira has served as National Executive Director of the Sons of Italy and is currently an independent consultant. Caira attended Boston College and holds a Masters Degree in public administration from Northeastern University.

He has twice served on the Board of Selectmen. When elected in 1972 at age 22, he was the youngest person ever elected to the board.

When asked how they would handle budget cuts if the override fails next week, all three men had ready answers. Clark said he would consolidate services and treat public safety as his highest priority. Hull said he would meet immediately with school officials to develop the framework for some compromises and be careful to take the long term approach so all departments would share some of the pain. Caira explained he would make public safety and education his top priority, reallocate personnel within the system to better utilize talents, and make "creative" kinds of reductions.

Bruce asked all three men their salary expectations if they became temporary manager. While Hull said he would expect to receive $52,000, the lowest salary offered for the job, Clark wanted $65,000 and Caira said he would want the salary at the highest end of the scale or $67,000.

The three finalists said they all were interested in the permanent position. However, Hull explained at one point if the board didn't have enough confidence to appoint him temporary manager, it would be a "long shot" to expect he would get the permanent position. In that case, he said, he would probably seek other opportunities outside Wilmington. Hull added he felt it was a matter of "protocol" to appoint the assistant town manager to fill the temporary position, if only to provide some "stability" for the town.

Very few members in the audience were happy with the board's choice. At least six residents complained about the process, saying it would have been less costly and fairer to automatically appoint Hull to the temporary position.

"The roll-over... would have kept us from a turmoil," said Anne Linchan, who added Caira would now have to get on-the-job training before he could effectively handle his duties.

"I think you've hurt us," said another resident, Mr. Woods, who was angry that the board hired the finalist who demanded the highest salary. He said their action was an additional burden for the taxpayer.

Haldane was most eloquent in Caira's defense.

"The most talented person we had applying for this position is Michael Caira," he said.

Caira was sworn in as temporary town manager on Monday morning by Town Clerk Pat Ward. Before being sworn in, he submitted his resignation as town moderator. According to the Town Charter, in order to be considered for the permanent position, Caira would have to be out of office for 12 months before being hired as Wilmington town manager.

Override election next Tuesday

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington voters will be flocking to the polls next Tuesday, June 12 to vote on an override of Proposition 2 1/2 to fund the 1991 operating budget. The town is $838,505 over the levy limit. Officials hope residents will opt to override that amount in order to save jobs and services from being cut. If the override attempt fails, a special town meeting will be called to pare down next year's budget so that it falls within the confines of 21/2.

Polls will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Residents in Precincts 1, 2, and 5 will vote at Wilmington Town Hall on Glen Road. Those in Precincts 3, 4, and 6 will vote at the Wildwood School.

Town meeting to elect new moderator

by Arlene Surprenant
With the office of Town Moderator now vacant, Wilmington voters will be asked to appoint a temporary moderator at the next scheduled town meeting. Former moderator Michael Caira resigned from the position Monday before being sworn in as Wilmington's temporary town manager.

The procedure for filling the vacancy is outlined in Chapter Two of the Inhabitant Bylaws, according to Assistant Town Clerk Kay Scanlon. Under the bylaws if a vacancy occurs, the unexpired term must be filled at the next town meeting. At the meeting, the town clerk would preside over the election of a temporary moderator, which would be taken up as the first order of business. To win, a candidate would need a majority vote, said Scanlon.

Caira's term expires next April.

Open house at affordable home

An open house is being planned for Tuesday, June 12, to celebrate the completion of the affordable home on town land on Everett Avenue. The home has been under construction for nearly a year by students in the Shawsheen Tech's homebuilding program. The non-profit Wilmington Community Development Corporation obtained a loan to purchase needed materials for the construction and has been supervising the entire project. Now that it's complete, the home is being sold to the Wilmington Housing Authority for rent to a local low to moderate income family.

According to WCDC President, Bob DiPalma, the general public, state and local officials, and town employees are invited to the open house, which will be held on site from 3 to 5 p.m. DiPalma explained the primary purpose of the open house will be to allow residents to view the finished product and see for themselves the result of the cooperative effort with the town.

The final loop

Class Marshalls Gina Martinello and Stephen Killilea led the way as 166 seniors took their leave from Wilmington High School on Sunday. In the words of Valedictorian Carla DeSantis, it was the final loop on an incredible ride, i.e. the Wilmington School System. Next week's Town Crier will carry an extensive spread on graduation.

J's Deli may come under new ownership

by Arlene Surprenant
J's Food and Deli on Middlesex Avenue may soon come under new ownership providing Al Fiorenza Jr. and his brother Barry are able to work within Board of Health guidelines and still make a profit. The two men are currently in negotiation to transfer ownership of the retail store and deli from their uncle James Fiorenza, and his son Joseph, to themselves.

"Everything rides on this," Barry explained Monday after conferring with Health Director Greg Erickson and the Wilmington Board of Health.

The town is still in litigation with the present owners over the sale of non-deli type food at the store. The health board had issued a cease and desist order to the owners and then revoked the store's operating licenses for non-compliance. The Fiorenzas filed suit against the town in Lowell Superior Court last winter to win back their licenses and allow them to continue the sale of non-deli foods.

Board members warned the men if they tried to operate a food service establishment and sell non-deli take out food at the store, they would create the same problems that the present owners are having with their board. Members said there is an important health issue involved in the case. They said because there is a substandard septic system on site, the business use can't expand into a restaurant even if it was in the right zone. Erickson explained there is no room on site for a leeching field and the septic system wasn't big enough for a house, let alone a restaurant.

As of now, said the board, the men could obtain a catering permit and a retail food license. Erickson said he would talk to Town Counsel to make sure the prospective owners could start "fresh" and not be tied to the past ownership.

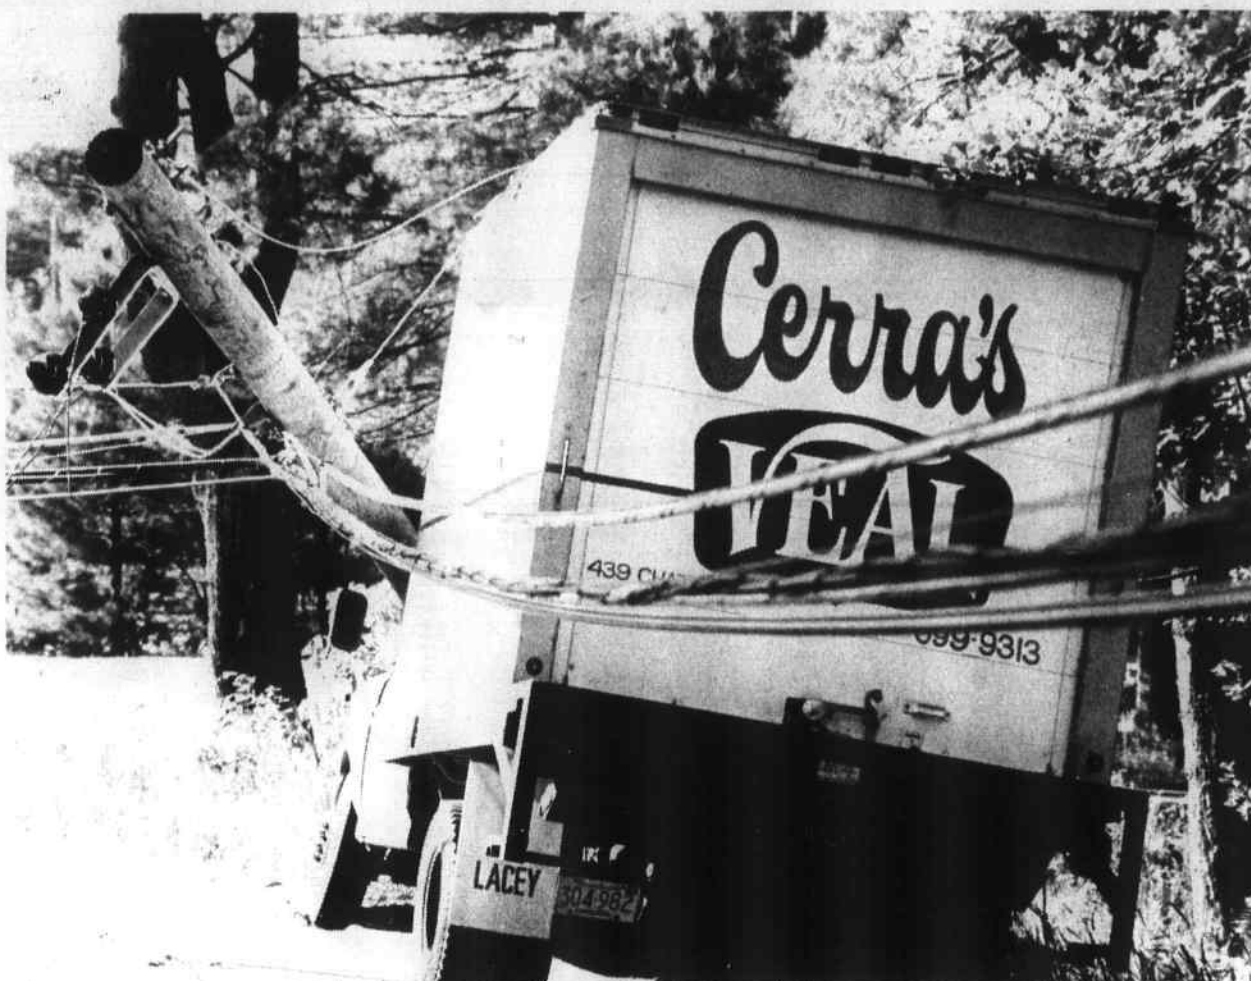

Both Fiorenzas said they plan to keep the store layout the same. They showed a floor plan and asked questions on the type of food which could be sold. They were told pre-packaged foods were allowed but such items as pizza and fish and chips is "just not going to be permitted."

Members suggested the prospective owners prepare a list of food items they wish to sell which the board could then review. When

Al asked if he could run a bakery on the premises, Erickson said it depended on what he meant by a bakery.

Barry asked why he would be allowed to run a catering business but could not prepare similar meals for sale over the counter since the food would be eaten off-premises. Chairman Jim Ficociello explained that the catering license was issued long before problems developed with the septic system and was in effect grandfathered in. Preparing non-deli food for sale is the province of a food service establishment or restaurant and could not be permitted according to Town Counsel, members said.

"In a way, I'm just looking out for your best interests," Ficociello told the men as he thanked them for taking the time to come to their meeting. He added as long as they both met the board's specifications, there would be no problem.

Traffic tangler

According to witnesses, this truck lost control due to a mechanical failure on Bridge Street in Tewksbury last Thursday and knocked down a utility pole full of live wires and TV cables. Bridge Street was closed for hours while repairs were made, tying up traffic on nearby streets. Nobody was injured in the low-speed accident.

New law could delay house sale

by Arlene Surprenant
A new law which went into effect May 1 may delay the purchase of an affordable home on Everett Avenue in Wilmington. Upon the home's completion, the Wilmington Housing Authority has the approval of the Executive Office of Communities and Development to purchase the home for approximately $80,000. Directors of the non-profit corporation overseeing the construction of the home by Shawsheen Tech students say the home is virtually complete now and only needs landscaping done by the town DPW.

The Uniform Procurement Act of Massachusetts General Law covers state bidding procedures. WHA Executive Director Ella Belmore told her board Tuesday if they want an exemption from this law, which really doesn't cover the Everett Avenue house, they would have to send a letter asking for one. Belmore said this process could take 30 days.

The housing authority can request the exemption based on the "unique qualities" of the home, which in this case would be the fact that the purchase price is far below market value. The Everett Avenue home falls under the act because there was no purchase and sales agreement drawn up by May 1.

Bob DiPalma and Vaughn Surprenant, directors of the Wilmington Community Development Corporation, argued they had a verbal agreement with the housing authority for financing before May 1 and that should exempt them from the law. They said, after May, any delay will cause the price of the home to go up because they will be paying money out of their own pockets.

Belmore and WHA members were upset by this latest delay. The executive director said she had just learned about the requirement that morning.

"I was very upset. Why did they leave it so long? It's a 30 day stall," she said. Belmore added that the new law has raised alot of unanswered questions around the state.

A disgusted Dan Gillis railed against the delay saying "here we go again."

WHA Chairman Michael Donovan suggested attorneys for the housing authority and the corporation get together to review the law for loopholes to see if anything can be done to move the project along. In the meantime, the board plans to submit a letter asking for the exemption.

GIVING TO CHARITY

Dropping a few dollars in the collection basket, or writing a check to your favorite charity - this is the kind of giving that most people are familiar with. There are other options that may be just as helpful to the charity and more valuable to the donor.

Used property - books, clothing and furniture, for instance, is sold in thrift shops run by some charities. Inventory your contribution and get a dated receipt from the charity; you can deduct the current fair market value of what you donate.

For more valuable property, you'll want an expert appraisal (required for gifts over $5,000 other than publicly traded securities). You can deduct full value if the charity uses the gift in its main activity. If it sells the gift, you can deduct only its original cost to you.

Give stocks and bonds that have appreciated. You deduct the full value and don't have to pay tax on the gain. (Unless you're subject to the Alternative Minimum Tax; talk to your tax advisor.)

What's the best way to structure your giving? Talk it over with the tax people at...

Truck signs legal, says Capuano

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington resident Tony Capuano expressed concern this week that the ban on trucks over 10 tons on portions of Salem Street, Ballardvale Street, Middlesex Avenue, and Glen Road is still an issue in Wilmington.

"It's about time they put this to rest. I just don't understand what's going on," Capuano said on Monday.

Local officials, obviously, are equally confused. At a recent meeting, Wilmington selectmen tried to determine if the signs they posted last winter are legal. According to a May letter from George Turner, Chief Engineer at the State Department of Public Works, the DPW plans to hold the truck exclusion in abeyance until a compromise is reached with Tewksbury. Tewks-bury officials plan to sue the state over the truck exclusion. They said Wilmington's action is increasing truck traffic on Tewksbury streets.

Selectmen Chairman Bob Doucette stated publicly it was his understanding the DPW processed its approval of the ban but no permit was ever received by the town. He told fellow selectmen if the signs are illegal they should come down.

Capuano told this paper the signs are still in place. "I worked very hard on this. If the signs are illegal, why don't they take them down?" he asked.

Capuano feels strongly, however, that the signs are legal and should remain in place. He said proof of their legality can be found in a January 29 letter from Turner to the town manager. In that letter Turner states, "A HCVE (Heavy Commercial Vehicle Exclusion) for the above locations is acceptable to the Department based, however, on certain conditions." Those conditions include limiting the exclusion to trucks over 10 tons for 24 hours, seven days a week. In addition, Turner says, "Without Tewksbury's approval and subsequent signing, the Department's approval affects only westbound travel on Salem Road / Salem Street." Wilmington officials waited until the letter was received before voting to adopt the truck exclusion February 12 and putting up the approved signs several weeks later.

"That letter is a bona fide document," said Capuano, claiming in addition it was as good as a permit. He said though it's not "110 percent," the signs are working and trucks which used to travel on

Salem Street are now using Routes 62 and 38. He added that Wilmington doesn't have to cooperate "in any way" with Tewksbury since Middlesex Avenue and other affected streets come under "home rule."

On May 14, the Ring Avenue resident met with Senator Robert Buell on the issue and was reportedly told the signs are legal and the state can't hold the truck exclusion in abeyance. Capuano now plans to adopt a wait and see attitude to give the senator a chance to work behind the scenes to see what can be done. As a last resort, he said, he would take the issue to the State Ethics Commission or file a class action suit against the town.

The oath Temporary Town Manager Michael Caira took the oath of office from Town Clerk Patty Ward on Monday morning.

Caira looking forward to new challenge

by Arlene Surprenant
When Wilmington selectmen decided to name Michael Caira as temporary town manager Friday, they chose a person from a well-respected family who is familiar with the town and local government.

Caira has been a resident of Wilmington for 40 years. His father Aldo currently serves on the local school committee. His sister Michelle Nortonen is the assistant principal at the Shawheen School. He has three brothers and his mother Laura is a highly regarded lady in her own right. Caira and his wife Jane live with their four children on Fletcher Lane.

Supporters say, as town moderator for the last eight years, Caira has exhibited both fairness and leadership ability. He has also proved capable of handling opposing factions and relieving tensions with his ready sense of humor.

On Monday, Caira assumed the temporary mantle of his predecessor Buzz Stapczynski. How does he feel?

"I feel good. I feel prepared and confident that I'm going to be able to do the job. And I'm looking forward to the challenge," he said as he talked further about his background and plans for the near future.

Caira agreed with critics who said he lacks municipal experience. However, he is quick to point out he gained similar experience while business administrator at Metropolitan State Hospital. He explained that working at the hospital was like managing a small community and he was able to pick up the experience he needs to handle the job in Wilmington. He said he is concerned that residents aren't familiar with his background, which covers a broad scope of administrative work in the private sector and at the state level. Caira explained, as Wilmington Town Moderator, he had to be non-partisan and added that anyone who thinks he will be "political" in his new position "just doesn't know me."

Caira said the first thing he did after being chosen Friday was to meet with Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hull and reaffirm that he'd like Hull to stay on in his present position.

"I think he's very bright and competent. I told him I would support him in whatever decision he makes about his future," Caira said.

The next step, the new administrator said, will be to try to develop a consensus in town because adversarial stances, he feels, are "counter-productive." Caira explained with the town facing difficult fiscal times ahead, residents need to pull together and become a "whole community."

One of Caira's strengths is his ability to work with people. The new temporary manager said he believes in dealing with people in an open, honest, and respectful manner. He cites the following as his personal credo: "It doesn't matter who gets the credit; what matters is the bottom line and how you get there."

Since Friday, Caira said he's received congratulations from a steady stream of well-wishers, 50 or 60 percent of whom were town employees. Caira plans to spend the next two weeks working, at no pay, on a transitional basis at town hall to bring himself up to speed on important issues facing the town.

"I'm going to be accessible," he told this paper, adding, "All I'm looking for, in return, is fairness."

What the override vote is all about

June 12 is a date that has sort of snuck up on the Wilmington electorate. Next Tuesday's election promises to have a light turnout, an ironic contrast to the April election which saw the largest turnout ever for a local race.

The election next Tuesday in Wilmington is on a referendum question. The only question on the ballot is an attempt to override Prop. 2 1/2.

The track record for such overrides in Massachusetts is very weak. Prop. 2 1/2 is a very popular tax-limitation measure which in the past decade has given voters a strong grip on the reins of property tax increases.

It is most likely that most people who are planning to vote next Tuesday have already decided how they will vote. So rather than try to sway votes, this editorial will attempt to explain the background.

As most people in the state are aware, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is in fiscal chaos. The state is facing a billion-dollar deficit. As a result of this situation, there has been a large cut-back in state aid to cities and towns.

This state aid had been the salvation of cities and towns trying to meet their obligations and provide services in the era of Prop. 2 1/2. With 2 1/2 limiting the amount of money that could be collected in local property taxes, cities and towns came to expect a share of the state funds, money collected in income tax and lottery receipts.

Added to Wilmington's problem was a decision by the Mass. Dept. of Revenue late last year which reduced the town's levy limit (total tax collection) by $803,000. The reduction was related to previous override votes taken for the renovation of Wilmington High School.

In light of that reduction, the Wilmington Finance Committee recommended cutbacks in various segments of the town budget. The town meeting, however, ignored the fincom's recommendations and proceeded to vote a budget that was over the limit by $838,000.

There are three possible remedies for this budget problem. You can (1) raise the limit, by voting for an override of Prop. 2 1/2. You can (2) reduce the budget. Or you can (3) hope for more state aid.

Wilmington is now seeking to do (1), expecting to do (2) and hoping for (3).

The likelihood of more state aid (3), is increasing. Revenue wizards on the state level now predict that Wilmington will get $639,000 in state aid IF the latest proposed state budget passes.

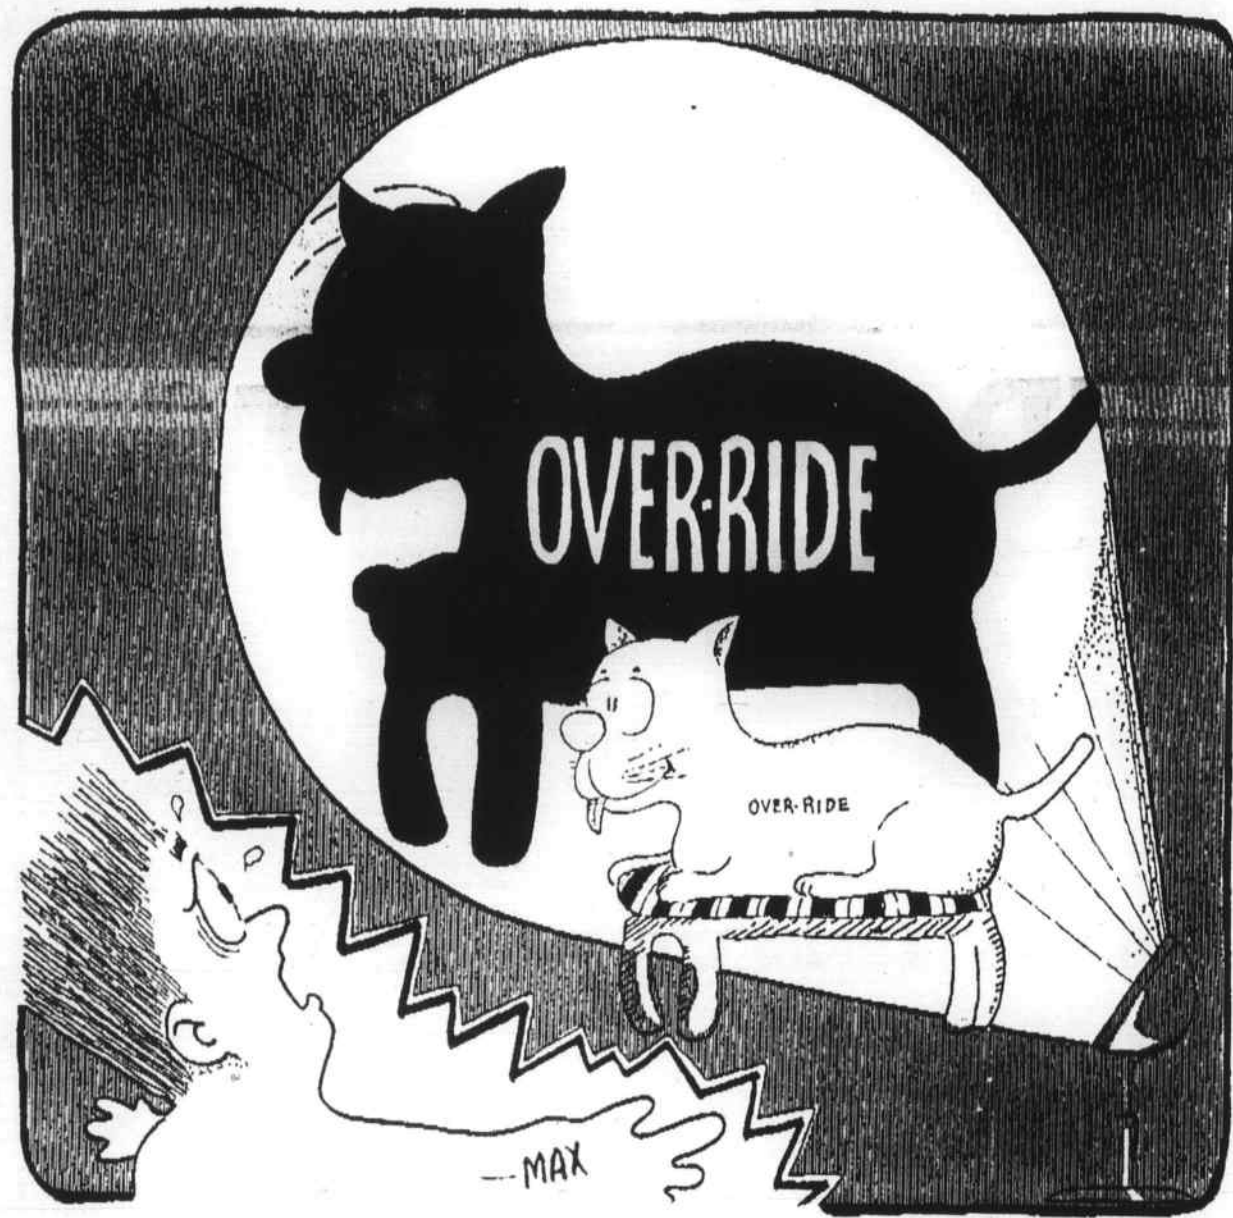

If that state aid is received, this would still leave the town budget $200,000 out of line. The budget would still have to be reduced in a special town meeting, but not as radically as would have been the case with $838,000 worth of cuts.

Of course, the electorate could turn in a surprise next Tuesday and pass the override, (but don't place any bets) in which case town services would be adequately funded and there would be fewer or maybe no jobs cut. If the override were to pass and the state aid were to come through, that would give the town the amount budgeted plus $639,000. The extra money could be appropriated, or it could be not appropriated, in which case it would not be collected from the taxpayers.

Then again, the town could turn down the override and then find that the state aid went down a black hole. That would leave the budget $838,000 out of balance, and would mean another bloodbath town meeting. The final result here would be many people thrown out of work and further cutbacks in town services.

It is a bit difficult to make an intelligent decision on this question because the state aid at this point is not guaranteed. One sure thing, though, is that the election is next Tuesday. Voters in precincts 1, 2 and 5 vote at the Town Hall, while voters in precincts 3, 4 and 6 vote at the Wildwood School. The polls are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Finding fault with the town manager search

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington has a new town manager, albeit a temporary one. A majority of selectmen feel Michael Cairn can handle the tough job that lies before him. In choosing Michael, selectmen stressed the need for someone who knows the town and can provide strong leadership both to department heads and their board.

Michael Cairn will no doubt fill the bill. He is his own person and has learned in eight years as Town Moderator how to guide a meeting and get things done. He also comes equipped with administrative experience from a number of jobs with state agencies, a large hospital, and the Sons of Italy organization. And, in his own words, Michael Cairn is committed to this town.

Michael's hardest task, however, may be convincing some people he is the right person for the job. Some disgruntled citizens, this writer included, have taken exception to the process used by selectmen in filling the vacancy. They feel initiating a search for a temporary manager when the assistant manager was well-equipped to step in and provide needed stability further delayed the search for a permanent manager and was not in the best interest of the town. Even now, more than two months after Buzz Stapczynski announced he would be leaving, that search has yet to begin. The selectmen should not insult our intelligence by saying they will conduct a national search when a majority of the board want Michael Cairn as permanent manager. Instead of wasting anymore time and money, selectmen should either begin an immediate search or do as some selectmen seem to prefer and take steps to get around the Town Charter and hire Michael on a permanent basis.

Many feel, of the three finalists, selectmen put their faith in the man with the least municipal experience. Many feel, too, that taxpayers weren't well-served when selectmen chose the man seeking the highest salary. In fact, had selectmen automatically given the job to Jeff Hull, money would have been saved in the temporary manager's salary and the assistant's salary as well.

There is another side. Some people feel the temporary manager should be someone who is not interested in the permanent position. They feel selectmen should have followed the lead of the school committee and filled the position with someone like interim superintendent John Stella, who was not a candidate for superintendent but who very capably handled the temporary job. This, they say, would have kept the position non-political and would avoid giving any one applicant the inside track.

Our new town manager will now have to prove he is not only a quick study but that he can handle, with patience and diplomacy, the various problems that will surely crop up in the weeks ahead. He would also do well to follow his own advice and build a consensus so everyone will be working together on finding solutions rather than adding to the problems.

Wilmington is facing an override of Prop 2 1/2 and probable cuts in both staff and services. Uncertainty over the Burlington Avenue bridge and town center, the local aid situation, the truck exclusion, traffic, development, and other issues abound. The town manager's job is enormous. With hard work, cooperation, and a vote of confidence from all of us, Michael Cairn should prove equal to the task.

Frankly speaking

by Paul H. Sullivan

As I sat at the Springfield Civic Center this weekend I thought how easy it was going to be to do this column this week. With all the miscues and faux pas, this column would write itself, right? Wrong. I can't think of anything that can really do justice to what I saw on Saturday.

I witnessed a mass transformation of the 5000 delegates, many of whom I have come to know, over the last 10 years. These self important know-it-alls who could rattle off useless facts about why we should boycott grapes, or what types of tuna is dolphin-free could not even figure out that they were being Bushwacked by a Republican Union.

You would have been amazed if you watched these grown men and women screaming at the Springfield Police Union to give up their picketing, though all the delegates had to do was walk around to the side doors or even through the center of the demonstration, which would have essentially ended the controversy. These so-called political leaders didn't even have the independence to make such a basic decision; it was pathetic.

At first I thought I would write a column that would talk about what a tragedy this convention was, but then I realized this is the best possible thing that could happen to the Democratic Party. It would have an opportunity to look at itself in a mirror, sort of a 1990's version of "The Emperor Had No Clothes."

Democrats would get to see Chet Atkins whining like Major Frank Burns, 4077 M.A.S.H. as Radar O'Reilly stole Hotlips Houlihan.

They would get to see Mike Dukakis standing up before his faithful with a bit of a Bert Simpson look on his puss, screeching how they were right and the world was wrong.

They would get to see Jim Roosevelt, legal counsel for the Democratic State Committee a/k/a Bennie from L.A. Law, chastising those damn Republicans for playing too rough.

But most of all they would get to see themselves, for what they have turned into -- a subset of society with more power than they deserve and less power than they desire. Hopefully they will come to the same conclusion that everyone (with the exception of them) has already come to, that they are dinosaurs and their days are numbered.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Memorial Day Committee, the Town of Wilmington, all the participants in Monday's parade and all the spectators along the route of march for the production of an outstanding day of commemoration to our deceased veterans. This was the culmination of a great deal of work involving the coordination by the continuous dedication of our veterans posts, civic groups, churches and general citizenry here in Wilmington. To this end, the town and its people can be very proud of themselves.

On a personal note, I would like to thank, and where appropriate apologize to those neighbors who live in the Chestnut Street area bordering the Marine Corps League headquarters, for showing patience and understanding during the few hours of our hosting of the general public. We attempted to minimize any inconvenience to our neighbors and to this end I hope we were successful. Realizing this is a unique annual event, reoccurrences are not to be expected but we are open to reasonable constructive input covering this day in future.

Thanking everyone again and wishing for your continued support, I remain respectfully,

Thomas E. Casey, Commandant,
Marine Corps League
and Chairman, Wilmington
Memorial Day Committee

Dear Larz:

On Friday night at the high school convocation, I was overwhelmed to receive the Humanitarian, Commitment and Courage honor award.

There are so many people to thank, the faculty and administration for allowing us to present our Aids education program to the high school students in December, Mrs. Norma Rushton and Mrs. Alice Bertini for giving me the courage and confidence to be able to tell Jim's story, and to the students of Wilmington High School. After I received this wonderful award, I turned around to a standing ovation from the Class of 1990. I wish I could tell each and every one of them what a gift that was to me. When I left the high school on December 1, 1989, I knew in my heart that we had made an impression, but to feel that the knowledge was still with them six months later is something that I will never forget. They truly are a credit to the Town of Wilmington.

I would be remiss if I did not thank two more people, when Jim became very sick, he made me promise that no matter what happened, I would always go on. Some days I look back on the little over a year since he has been gone and I honestly don't know what I have been doing. The only one concrete thing that I can put my finger on is Aids education. Jim's wonderful strength and courage had given me the ability to, hopefully help others with this devastating virus.

And last, but certainly not least, to my daughter, Kelly. Her patience and understanding when I get uptight about exactly what I am actually going to say when I speak is remarkable. She has allowed me to share a very personal part of our lives, for she too believes that Jim would want us to do this. It is she who will sit with me and un-scramble my thoughts and put them into perspective. I love you "K.C."

Thank you all for giving me the opportunity to speak to you, this award will keep me going with our Aids education program for as long as it is necessary.

Sincerely,
Suzi Cushing

letters to the editor

Dear Captain Neilson:

When an override vote failed in another town, a citizen said that no one told him why he should vote for it so he voted against it.

Since I am neither a town official or employee, just an ordinary taxpayer, I hope that voters will read the following discussion explaining why I strongly favor the override.

1. If the override is not passed we will probably have to cut the town budget by over $800,000. Since the town has already announced the layoff of 27 educators and cut a lot of other expenses, it is clear there is no fat in this budget. Additional cuts will affect important services. Who knows where the axe will fall? Fire? Police? Senior citizens? Recreation? More teachers? All of the above?

2. The reason for these cuts is not that town spending is excessive. Town expenses are rising well below the inflation rate. The reasons for the cuts are that the state cut its funding to the town by over $500,000 in 1990 and another $300,000 for 1991. In addition, the state has cut Wilmington's tax levy limit by over $800,000. That's a total of $1.6 million in lost revenue.

3. Since the passage of Proposition 2 1/2 10 years ago, local taxes have risen very little. Mine have actually gone down. Increases in town costs, which have been due primarily to inflation, have been funded by aid from the state. State aid to communities rose by over 150 percent between 1980 and 1989. In essence, we have become dependent on Beacon Hill for a major portion of town revenues (over 40 percent).

4. Although the town still has a chance of getting some of this money because of the Brookline suit, there is no assurance of this, especially since the state is broke. Don't forget, Massachusetts has the lowest bond rating in the country and state revenues continue to fall short of expectations.

5. If the CLT tax and fee rollback petition succeeds in November, state revenue will decline further and Wilmington will get even less state money than is in the town budget.

6. What irks me most about this whole situation is that we have lost control of our town to outside forces on Beacon Hill.

7. If the override succeeds the average additional cost per home will be a little over a dollar a week. Now, I'm pretty cheap but I can part with another dollar a week without even noticing.

8. When we chose to live here 14 years ago, this was a nice town and it is even nicer now. We did not choose to live in a declining town then and we don't choose to live in one now, but if taxpayers don't take care of our town it will decline.

9. This problem is likely to worsen for years to come. Economic forecasters are not expecting state revenue to grow at very high rates during the 1990's yet state expenses for Medicaid and other "busters" are growing astronomically. So, the town can't really expect state aid to grow much. Inflation is expected to continue at four to five percent. So the town will get squeezed.

Virtually every town in this state has the same problem. Some are voting overrides and some are not. In my view, as time goes on, the impact will be more visible. There will be a bigger difference between "nice towns" and "cheap towns." The gaps in school systems, fire departments and police forces will also grow. Real estate valuations will be affected.

It is not my usual practice to write letters to the editor, but part of my business is to study economic trends in this state. That led to concern about the future of Wilmington. Because I am concerned with my family's safety, my son's education and our overall enjoyment of this beautiful town, I am absolutely convinced that we should do everything we can to take back control of our town from Beacon Hill. Voting for the override is a critical step in this process. Maybe they will come through with some more money and maybe they won't. But for a dollar a week why take the chance on something as important as this?

Sincerely yours,
Don Cassidy

Dear Larz:

Boy am I worried! I worry every time that somebody in town calls for an override of Prop 2 1/2. Here we go again! Why can't these department heads live within their budgets the way we have too?

I always thought the idea of needing a town manager was that he would manage the town's finances to keep taxes down. Now, it seems, these department heads are actually told to increase their budgets yearly a certain percent more.

As for finance committee recommendations, they don't mean anything. These people are political appointments, so they do what they're told. It seems some of our selectmen are part of the problem - not the solution.

We still have the same problems when it comes crunch time with not enough money to go around. Cuts are called for in the wrong part of departments. They want to cut the workers at the bottom. The fat is at the top such as an assistant town manager, Assistant superintendent of schools and business manager. Also, why does the high school need a principal and two vice principals?

They told us last year if we'd just vote to override one more time for boilers, that should have been put in during the high school (14 million) renovation, we'd be all set. Then they wanted to override to renovate the auditorium. Good maintenance and a paint job should suffice.

There just doesn't seem to be an end to all the spending. They told us it would cost each household about $40 a year for the boilers. My tax bill was up over $140 this year. Is anyone out there listening?

We seniors who live in our own homes are in trouble. The federal, state and local governments all want higher taxes from us.

We don't hear of any plans to cut the fat from budgets such as two deputy fire chiefs or five lieutenants. There are still seven sergeants as well as a lieutenant and deputy police chief.

Every department in town is fat at the top, but no one seems to do anything about it. Good, strong management and fiscal restraints would go a long way in solving a lot of our problems.

The selectmen should appoint the assistant town manager until they come up with a permanent one. Stop playing politics with the local men for the job. It will only lead to trouble and favoritism.

One more time, let me say we have to send these people a message. No! to an override of Prop 2/12. Let's get out and let them know we're mad as hell and we're not going to take it anymore.

Please, don't use my name Larz, as I don't need the harassment.

Worried Senior

Dear Larz:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people involved in Wilmington's Earth Day celebration. The list of volunteers and participants is too long to mention everyone. However, my fellow members of the Recycling Advisory Committee deserve special recognition.

Esta Browning, Liz Harriman, Tom Ollila, Steve Sabounjian and Jonathan Goldfield were instrumental in the event's success. The Wilmington PACs donated their time and provided donations to purchase Earth Day flags. Thanks also to the Ipswich Watershed Association, the Wilmington Water & Sewer Commissioners, the Wilmington Conservation Commission, the University of Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service, the Wilmington Garden Club, the Wilmington League of Women Voters, the State Department of Environmental Protection and Mass Save.

Special thanks go to the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce for the donation of money. Their generosity allowed us to provide Earth Day t-shirts, Earth Day buttons and other prizes to participating school students. The Recycling Advisory Committee sincerely appreciates the generosity of the Chamber of Commerce.

Barbara Wrightson and her committee were responsible for judging the posters and essays submitted by the school children. It was quite a challenge with the number of competitive entries. The work of Barbara and her committee was greatly appreciated. Finally, but by no means least, the students and faculty of the Wilmington School System were terrific. The enthusiasm demonstrated by both students and faculty is a healthy sign that people care enough to "think globally and act locally."

The event was a success because it created an awareness of the environmental challenges facing us and because it provided suggestions on how each one of us can do his part. Perhaps, most importantly, the events surrounding Earth Day including the exhibition in the Wilmington High school cafeteria have energized the youth of Wilmington. If that energy to improve our environment can be maintained and strengthened throughout the year, the results will be astounding.

With all the people who participated in the Earth Day celebration I am sure I have forgotten to mention someone. My apologies if that is the case. I wish to congratulate everyone involved for their dedication to the environment.

Very truly yours,
Jeffrey M. Hull

Wilmington teachers learn about 'Project WILD'

by Arlene Surprenant

In a cooperative effort between town and school, Conservation Administrator Eileen Flaherty led a May 17 in-service teachers workshop on Aquatic Project Wild.

Project Wild is a large-scale supplement to the regular classroom curriculum which focuses on wildlife and environmental concepts. According to Flaherty, the curriculum gives teachers in grades K through 12 instructional activities that can be incorporated in the classroom. The project is a joint venture of the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife and the Massachusetts Audubon Society. The goal of Project Wild is to prepare youngsters to be able to make decisions about people, wildlife, and the earth.

Flaherty herself took an intensive 30 hour workshop in February on Project Wild and earned certification as an aquatic wildlife facilitator. She is now qualified to offer free workshops on the subject to schools and such organizations as the scouts.

"We feel this is a good cooperative effort between the schools and the town," Flaherty told the Town Crier last week. She went on to explain she hoped her workshop gave teachers a good base for doing environmental projects in their own classes, no matter which subject they teach.

Nine teachers from five schools signed up for the mini-workshop in May. The teachers participated in several activities which can, in turn, be done with their own students. These included an activity on land use where participants situated businesses, industries, and homes around a wetland; a look at aquatic pollution; an elementary activity called Fashion of Fish; and the study of a puddle to see how a puddle evolves and evaporates.

What feedback she's received has been gratifying, Flaherty said.

"No one felt it was a waste of time. They were enthusiastic and rated the workshop good to excellent," Flaherty explained. She went on to add that during the program she stressed that the activities are an easy way to get youngsters to learn and have fun.

"I stress the kids are learning by default," she said.

Any local group interested in either a three hour or six hour workshop of their own should contact the conservation administrator at Wilmington Town Hall (658-3311, extension 335). Participants are given curriculum booklets outlining the activities.

Backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg
Among the more serious problems which will face Wilmington and Tewksbury gardeners this summer are diseases on tomato plants.

Some growers are fortunate, and year after year experience few or no disease difficulties. More and more though, I see and hear of entire plantings which are wiped out by fungus, virus and wilt damage around mid August. By far the three most common problems are blossom end rot, anthracnose, and early blight. All three can be treated in the same manner, using Ortho's multi purpose fungicide, which contains Daconil 2787.

I think of disease control on my tomato plants as a two step process, the first of which begins now. My Jumbo and Jet Star plants, standing about eight inches tall, have been in the garden for 10 days. Chances are that if I am going to have disease problems on these plants this summer, the wilt, virus or fungus spores and microbes are already in the soil or on the plants. It is not for another four to six weeks that we will be able to see any visual evidence that we do, indeed, have problems.

Step one, then, involves treating the soil this weekend, and the process is quite simple. We can fertilize the young plants and help to control diseases at the same time. In your garden pail or bucket, mix Miracle Gro, one tablespoon per gallon and the Multi Purpose fungicide, two tablespoons per gallon. Dig a three inch deep trench around each tomato plant, about 12 inches out from the stem. Pour this solution into the trench, giving each plant a full gallon. Pour slowly, to prevent runoff. Repeat this application in 14 days, and you will have helped to reduce any disease problems on your tomato plants this year. A little later on we will cover step two, which involves an every 10 day application of fungicide to the entire plant, starting the last weekend in June.

Some miscellaneous notes: Check your squash and pumpkin plants carefully. If you see little yellow and black beetles running around the leaves, you have an infestation of cucumber beetles. This pesky insect loves all of the vine crops, though it is especially partial to cukes. Apply "Safer" all purpose insecticide in the evening or, in extreme cases, apply liquid Seven, mixed per directions, using a compressed air sprayer. Use Seven only as a last resort, and never before 7:30 p.m. to protect the bees. A light dusting of the organic pesticide Rotenone will control cucumber beetles also.

If you plant carrots, be sure your garden soil is loose to a depth of 15 to 18 inches. If you have been trying to grow carrots in five or six inches of topsoil with hard packed sand or shale below, you probably have not had much success. In order to develop properly, the root vegetables must be able to send their long tap roots unimpeded deep into the subsoil. Take the few extra minutes prior to planting carrot seeds and double dig this area to a depth of at least 15 inches. You'll see a world of difference in the size of the roots at harvest time.

Next week we'll look into the mailbag.

Tewksbury Jr High to give student awards

Another very proud moment in the history of Tewksbury Junior High School will take place Thursday evening, June 14 in the auditorium. Over 150 awards will be given to seventh and eighth grade, as well as IGE students.

The sounds of the Jazz Band and rics of the Performing Glee Club will be featured during this rogram. Due to limited seating, ach student receiving an award will be allowed two guests (proud arents most likely).

The awards are described as follows:

Perfect attendance: difficult to attain on those cold, windy mornings when your bed is so omfortable especially if you have slight case of sniffles. One undred and eighty days is a long retch without any missing piece.

Principal's list: students who a one or more report cards have tained all "A" grades in each iversified subject area. The nificance of this award speaks for self.

Presidential Academic itness: these students receive a rtificate signed by President ush and the principal certifying at all standards have been met. hese standards are a composite ore over the 80th percentile or ater while at the same time taining a quality point average of 7 (B+) or better.

Outstanding Scholar: each ie fifth and sixth grade teacher is chosen the best student in each ass for recognition. This plants the fact that there can be no honor roll per se because of individualized pace in these classes, especially in Math and Language Arts.

Individual Teacher Awards: each individual staff member has selected a student for this commendation due to significant improvement, conscientious hard work, or outstanding dedication. Each recipient should be proud of the fact that they have impressed a staff member in such a manner this year.

Deputy chief to serve on hazardous response team

Deputy Chief Daniel R. Stewart of the Wilmington Fire department will serve on the Lowell/Lawrence Hazardous Materials Response Team following graduation from an intensive four week training program.

The 32 member team from communities in the Lowell/Lawrence area is one of six regional teams developed to fight fires involving hazardous materials.

"This is history in the making," said Public Safety Secretary Charles Barry. "Massachusetts will now have readiness teams mobilized to respond to any type of hazardous materials fire and state of the art equipment to assist them in their task."

Because of the amount of specialized training and equipment needed to address the threat of hazardous materials fires, the idea of highly trained regional teams was developed by the Executive Office of Public Safety and the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy, along with the Fire Chiefs Association of Massachusetts and the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts, the state's firefighters union.

The teams, which consist of 240 trained firefighters statewide, have specially equipped vehicles stationed in six communities. The vehicles purchased by the state last year are housed in Lowell, Bourne, Chicopee, Somerville, Natick and Pittsfield.

The Massachusetts Firefighting Academy will conduct six Hazmat training programs, each 160 hours long. The program consists of extensive classroom and practical skills training to teach firefighters how to knock down hazardous materials fires, leaks, spills and accidents.

"The cooperation between the Fire Chiefs Association of Massachusetts and the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts in establishing this Hazmat team is evidence that both organizations are dedicated to the public safety of the citizens of the Commonwealth," said Sudbury Fire Chief Michael Dunne, president of the Fire Chiefs Association of Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts National Guard, along with the Department of Public Health, is conducting physical examinations for each of the Hazmat team members, at a cost savings of nearly $250,000 to local communities.

Sara Fay-Tarlin named School Psychologist of Year

The Board of Directors of the Massachusetts School Psychologists Association has announced that it has designated Sara Fay-Tarlin of Wilmington Public Schools as School Psychologist of the Year.

Citing her vital role in the finally successful campaign for licensure for Massachusetts school psychologists, the organization recognized her as an individual whose work on this long term project contributed to the lives of school psychologists for generations to come.

Tarlin has served as a school psychologist in the Wilmington schools since 1987. A school psychologist for 10 years, she also taught elementary school for three years. She is a graduate of Boston University and holds two advanced degrees, including a master's from Framingham State and a C.A.G.S. from UMass Boston.

Educational psychologists provide a variety of services including psychological evaluation of children, counseling of students and consultation for parents and teachers. They are principally employed in the public schools of the Commonwealth and play a major role in developing and determining the placement of students in various educational programs mandated by federal and state law.

The Massachusetts School Psychologists Association represents the professional concerns of over 500 school psychologists in the Commonwealth in its work with local school districts, the Massachusetts Department of Education, members of the legislature, and parent organizations. It provides continuing professional education for members and is an affiliate of the National Association of School Psychologists, headquartered in Washington, D.C.

Tarlin was presented the award at the May convention of the MSPA at the Hogan Campus Center of the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester.

Sara Fay-Tarlin receives the plaque naming her as the School Psychologist of the Year.

Wilmington senior topics

Thanks, seniors

We thank the seniors who walked in the Memorial Day Parade. We had a good number of our dance class who walked together and they looked great all dressed up in their blue shirts, white pants or skirts and white shoes. We hope next year to have representatives from our other activity programs.

COA has vacancies

We need two people to fill the vacancies on the Council on Aging board. Two members have served nine years and will be stepping down at the end of June. As we enter the 90's the Council on Agings throughout the country will be faced with many problems and Wilmington is no exception.

Every year we are seeing the number of residents in the town reaching the age of 60 increasing rapidly. With the increased number of senior citizens will be an increase of services and problems that will have to be handled.

Accomplishing the goals we set as we entered the 80's was met through the members of the Council working together. We hope to continue meeting the needs of the Wilmington senior citizens as we move through the 90's, but to do so we need people who care about the elderly and want to be a part in making the lives of all of us much better. It is a rewarding job and requires only about two hours one day a month of your time. Call the coordinator if you would like to give it a try. I am sure you will be happy you did.

One program canceled

We will be canceling only one of our programs through the summer months and that will be the shop class. The instructor will be away for the summer. Our building is air conditioned throughout, allowing us to carry the programs all year. Therefore to answer all the questions all activity programs will continue at their regular time and day. Why try to exercise outside when the weather is hot and humid? Come to the center and join the wonderful exercise class held Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 to 11 a.m. Or use the exercise equipment in the exercise room. It is much better to walk on the treadmill and ride the bike in an air conditioned room than to walk in extreme heat. If you prefer to dance as a means of exercising, join the dance class Thursday beginning at 1 p.m. in the cool function room.

SSI limitations changed

The qualifying amount of income you can have in order to qualify for SSI in Mass. has been increased so that more elders may qualify this year. The new figures are for an individual 65 or older with earned income, that is, a Social Security check, pension check and veterans' pension check of less than $534.82 a month may be entitled to SSI. In addition to having limited income an individual resources cannot exceed $2000.

Certain resources are not counted and those are: a home in which you are living, an automobile used for transportation and funds set aside for burial and funeral expenses up to $1500. If you would like to find out if you qualify it is not necessary to go to the Social Security Office in Lowell at 26 Palmer St. you may call the toll free number 1-800-234-5772.

Seniors gift

Division II North Tourney

Redmen to challenge champ

The Tewksbury High School baseball Redmen are closing in on the Division II North Championship after scoring impressive tournament victories over Danvers (2-1) and Reading (9-4) this past week.

The Redmen improved their 1990 record to 19-3, combining the pitching, defense, speed, timely hitting and solid fundamental baseball that has carried them throughout the season.

Coach Sean McCarthy's team now faces its biggest challenge when it takes on defending Division II champion Salem (20-2) in the semifinal game this afternoon (June 6) at Wilmington starting at 4 p.m.

Monday the Redmen rolled out to a 5-0 lead over Reading behind the bat of Paul Botto and the pitching of junior righthander Sean Mackey (9-2). Botto's second two-run double of the game helped to ice the game after Reading had cut the margin to 5-4 in the sixth inning.

Bill Buckley also helped the cause with a double and two RBIs. B.J. Doherty ripped an RBI double and Mackey drove in a pair of runs with a single and a double.

Saturday afternoon the Redmen survived the haze and the heat to edge Danvers in 11 innings, scoring the winning run on an unusual play in the bottom of the 11th.

Mackey scored the game winner when he raced home from third when an intentional ball four soared over the Danvers catcher's head.

Mackey picked up the win in relief of sophomore lefthander Ken Chandler, who was unaffected by tourney pressure, hurling 10 innings, over which he allowed only five hits, three staying in the infield.

The Redmen managed just four hits, scoring their first run of the game in the fourth when Doherty walked, stole second and came around on Al Freitag's double.

The defensive stars of the game were Mackey with a diving catch in centerfield that saved a run in the 10th inning and Chandler, who fielded his position perfectly throughout the afternoon.

Wildcats eliminated

Wildcat senior Gina Martiniello fires a pitch early in Friday afternoon's opening game Division II Tourney loss at Stoneham. Getting ready behind Gina is shortstop Judy O'Connell, who scored the lone WHS run. Wilmington lost, 21-1 but still enjoyed a fine season, finishing with a 12-7 record. Next week the Town Crier will take a final look at this exciting team coached by Paul Lyman. See other photo on page 15 of the sports section. (Rick Cooke photo).

TMHS girls' track

Tewksbury races to MVC title, 80-56

The Tewksbury High School girls track team finished the season with a flourish on May 23 when they won their showdown with Methuen for the MVC Division I championship with a solid 80-56 come-from-behind victory.

On May 25 they scored 37 points at the State Class B Championship Meet to place fourth as a team.

The MVC title was the Tewksbury girls' second title in as many years and brought their dual meet record to 17-0 over the past two seasons.

As expected, Methuen scored heavily in the throwing events - but not as heavily as they needed to. Stephanie Beaulieu got off a fine javelin throw of 92'9" to grab a second place and Amy Beuregard threw the discus 96'4" to take a third. Thus, the score after the throwing events was Methuen 23, Tewksbury 4, but it could have been much worse.

The rest of the field events went very well for TMHS. Kristen Phillips did her best high jumping of the season and tied with Heather Heinz of Methuen at 5'0" for first place. Annmarie Kicza leaped 4'10" to take third, thus giving Tewksbury a 5-4 edge in that event.

In the long jump, Mary Brady, who has improved tremendously in that event, jumped 14'11" to get second place and Annmarie, fresh from the high jump, jumped 14'10" to take third.

Lauren Andriolo and Stephanie Beaulieu put on a great display of triple jumping to take 1-2 there. Thus, when the field events were over, Tewksbury still trailed, but only by 33-21.

In the running events Tewksbury dominated. The two mile pitted TMHS premiere freshman distance runner Heather Farrand against Methuen's fine runner, Shawna Crafton. Heather tagged along with Shawna for a mile and then blasted ahead and surged to a 200 yard lead. Heather's time, 11:53.5 was the fastest two mile ever run by a girl at the TMHS' track. Wendy Fowler also ran well in the two mile to take third.

Kori Wyshak and Jessica Britten duplicated the 1-3 finish in the 100 meter hurdles. Kori flew over the sticks in 16.6 seconds. Debbie Takach blasted home first in the 100 meter dash a few minutes later with Kori, fresh off the hurdles, in hot pursuit and finishing third.

Distance running is the Tewksbury strong suit and that was clearly evident in the mile run. Maureen Forsyth led the way with a 5:39 clocking, followed by Tammie Brooks in 5:47 and Jennifer Harmon in 5:53. Most track teams are happy if they have one or two milers who can break six minutes. Tewksbury has six!

After Methuen won the 440 relay, the score was 48-47 Tewksbury, and the meet was down to the final five events. They were all Tewksbury. Mary Brady once again won her duel with Diana Diaz in the 400 meters, Mary striding in at 59.6. Amy Beuregard then took on the 300 low hurdles and, running them for the first time ever in a meet, clocked a 49.9 to win.

Then Kim Farrand, Stephanie Beaulieu and Jessica Hupper pulled off a 1-2-3 sweep of the 880 and the meet was all but over.

Mary Brady and Debbie Takach drove the final points home with a solid 1-2 finish in the 220. Then, even though the meet had already been decided, both teams went all out in the mile relay. Annmarie Kicza, Maureen Forsyth and Kim Farrand brought the baton in even with Methuen after three legs and it was all up to Heather Farrand.

Heather battled Julie Rourke of Methuen for 400 yards and finally pulled ahead to get the win with a 4:20.0 time, the fastest mile relay time in a dual meet run in the MVC this season.

With the MVC title now stashed away, the Tewksbury girls traveled to Reading for the State Class B Championship Meet. In this big meet Methuen's powerful throwers were able to garner 36 points before the winning events began and their team was able to hold on to win the meet. Tewksbury had its best state meet showing ever, scoring 37 points and finishing fourth out of 40 teams competing.

Lauren Andriolo triple jumped her best of the season, 43'3" and got a sixth for her efforts. Annmarie Kicza jumped 5', an outstanding jump in her freshman year, and tied for third. Kori Wyshak also took third with a great run in the 100 meter hurdles. And Debbie Takach ran a strong 100 meter race to take third.

Two girls set new school records at the state meet. Mary Brady surged ahead of her tough opponents in the finals of the 400 meters to win with a spectacular time of 58.1 seconds. That victory was the first class B title by a TMHS runner since Bev Luken won in 1984.

Heather Farrand ran a tremendous race in the mile, coming home third in 5:14 to break her mile record once again. The mile record was 5:27 when the season started and Heather has lowered it four times.

The mile relay was also a strong event for TMHS. The time of 4:15.5 run by Amy Beuregard, Kim Farrand, Heather Farrand and Mary Brady was the fastest run by a TMHS team since 1986 and it was good enough for fourth place.

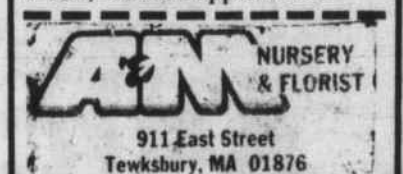

There has never been a girls' spring track season as good as this one at Tewksbury High School. Besides finishing 7-0 and winning the MVC title, the girls were second in the Wilmington Invitational, second in the Class B State Relays, fourth in the Andover Invitational, second in the Northern Area Meet, and fourth in the State Class B Meet. All of these achievements were the result of the dedication and hard work

Few shade trees are as sturdy, long-loved and majestic as the oak. These slow-growing giants will not produce shade overnight, but there are a few species that grow faster than others. The pin oak grows about 70 feet high and forms a broad pyramid-shaped tree. It has dark green foliage and slightly pendulous branches. Pin oaks are quite hardy and grow faster than other oak species, but they will not prosper in alkaline soil. Use them as lawn specimens. Like the pin oak, the red oak is relatively fast growing and may grow slightly taller than pin oaks do. It is pollution resistant and has leaves that turn scarlet in the fall. The mightiest oak needs tender care in its childhood, and you'll never buy a tree without fully explained instructions for its nurture, when it comes from A&M NURSERY AND FLORIST, 911 East Street in Tewksbury. We're convenient to downtown, off Rte. 93, and offer full service landscape design, all you need for a beautiful flower gardener raising a copious vegetable crop. Phone 851-4472. MASSBANK FOR SAVINGS TO PROVIDE $2.5 MILLION FOR FIRST TIME HOMEBUYERS

Reading, MA - May 29, 1990. President Gerard H. Brandi today announced that MASSBANK for Savings will provide up to $2.5 million in residential home mortgage loans to first time homebuyers.

Under the special program, individuals who would not ordinarily qualify for a mortgage under MASSBANK's conventional programs may apply for a first time homebuyers loan for properties in Reading, Melrose, Stoneham, or Wilmington.

Mr. Brandi indicated that this program will differ from other MASSBANK mortgage programs by providing adjustable rate mortgages at below market interest rates for the first seven and one-half years of the mortgage. Also, the program provides for smaller down payments, more liberal income qualifications, no points, no private mortgage insurance and longer repayment terms.

Mr. Brandi concluded his remarks by noting that in these times of a perceived "credit crunch" MASSBANK is pleased to be able to offer this type of mortgage program to assist first time homebuyers in MASSBANK's service area as they look to "make the dream of home ownership a reality."

For information regarding this program, please call MASSBANK for Savings' Loan Origination Department at 942-8117.

Fish don't care about stucco ceilings

by Bill Conlon

We can't go fishing every day of the year, unfortunately. Sooner or later we simply MUST work, at least a day or two a month, in order to have money to buy boats and other nifty stuff. Sad but true. We can't fish all the time.

When fishing time does arrive, we want perfect weather. Sunny, warm and calm. Sad again, but weather is hardly ever perfect, especially this spring. It hasn't been a good year.

We've seen plenty of rain, clouds and wind in the first half of 1990. Fishing under clouds is easy enough, fishing in the rain is dampening but easy enough, but fishing in wind can be a nightmare.

Wind on the pond can range from the gentlest of breezes to an all-out gale, with lots of variation. One day the wind will be brisk and blowing from the south-southwest, the next day it's a faint puff from the north, later switching to a howling storm-wind out of the east. Rarely does the weatherman ever predict what the wind tomorrow will be like.

The ideal wind, for me at least, is none at all. I just love a glassy pond. Such a surface lets you see swirls on top, and you can watch a Jitterbug all the way through its dance, to spot the gentlest of hits. I love it.

Glassy ponds are the exception to the rule, however.

A rippled pond is the norm, except for the quiet spots by the lee shore, in the shelter of the trees. The windward shore, the one facing into the breeze, will have waves all the way to the shore itself. Folks in small boats and canoes will be hiding in the calm under the trees, abandoning their favorite spots to stay in the flat water.

When the wind really howls, with whitecaps on the pond, most smaller boats stay on the trailer for the day. A real screamer of a blow will keep all but the hardest anglers home.

Fish, however, couldn't care less how windy it gets. To them, a wind just means a stucco ceiling instead of a painted one. The dinner table stays the same no matter what the ceiling looks like. No, I'm not forgetting my uncle's admonition that "Fishing is best when wind is west, fishing is least when the wind is east," but the fish really seem to care otherwise.

Well, in one way, that's wrong. Fish do like it windy, in one regard:

If you're fishing below the surface you won't catch much on a calm day. A little chop on the surface breaks up your outline, and the outline of your boat, so that fish can't see you as well. They'll hit jigs and spinner-baits much more readily if a breeze is rippling the surface. If they're hot for rubber worms, the surface isn't all that important, as they'll be looking down more than up.

For example, do you care that all sorts of water is flowing under your feet right now? It doesn't affect you so it might as well not exist. Fish are the same way about air -- uncaring.

So, you know where the fish will be, but you're reluctant to brave the waves. You'll need a few things to make a windy day more liveable, but it isn't impossible at all.

First, you need horsepower. Hand-powered boats are at a disadvantage on windy days. A real workhorse on the stern makes it possible to move against the wind, to get where you want to go instead of going where the wind wants you to.

Second of all is a big enough boat. A Crawdad simply can't stand up to the waves like a Sears Gamefisher, or something similar with high gun-wales, to keep waves from sloshing in. Funny, but I can't seem to relax when the lake is climbing into the boat. Makes me a bit nervous.

A big difference on a windy day is your anchor. You'll need a heavier-than-normal anchor to hold you in place in a blow, so you might need to replace that red brick on the rope with at least a cinder block. Tie the anchor to your bow, instead of tying to the side or stern, to limit your "frontage" to the wind. A nose-on boat is much easier to hold in place than one with the entire starboard catching the wind. The ideal setup in a breeze is two anchors, set bow and stern, to keep you rock steady.

Also, the right anchor to keep the boat in place is important if you're fishing a rubber worm. You need a dainty touch on the line for a rubber worm to work best, and a boat that drifts sends confusing signals up the line. You'll be setting the hook on every weed if you're drifting.

Casting in a breeze is difficult, at best, and impossible at worst. Don't even try casting into the wind, unless you enjoy the feel of a treble hook in your ear lobe. The line acts as a sail, and a boomerang cast is no joke.

Instead, cast either with the wind, for incredibly long throws, or learn how to use a sidearm motion, to get under the breeze. The surface of the water disrupts the wind, so a lower cast is a longer one.

And there will be days when you should just stay home, period. High wind and huge waves can overcome any ship made. (Only a submarine can hide under a storm, but fishing from a sub is unsportsmanlike). The truly deadly days are uncommon in fresh water, luckily, but all bets are off when you fish the sea. The ocean is always hungry, never satisfied. Don't give the Coast Guard something to do by going out in weather where you don't belong.

Oh, and dress well for the breeze. It gets cold on the water in a blow, not to mention the inevitable spray that the whitecaps are kicking up.

Most people say they can't catch a thing in the wind, but that's because they usually won't fish in it. They're the ones huddled near the shoreline, in what little flat water there is.

The fish don't really care. They're as hungry as ever.

--- Tackle Box ---

Rumor has it that a 35-pound pike was taken from the Concord River recently, but I can't verify it. If the pike is real, it could be a new state record. Stay tuned for updates.

The Wilmington Lions Club and Wilmington Rec fishing derby on Silver Lake is scheduled to run from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, June 9. Prizes will be awarded for heaviest bass, heaviest non-bass, and a special prize of heaviest trout, if any come in. The entry fee is a paltry $3 for adults (18 and under) and $1 for the younger set. Boat rentals, bait sales and map sales will be offered, along with refreshments. Sorry, but you can't use motors or electronics.

Incidentally, Eddie Silva at Wildside Sports said there have been a couple of 5+ pound bass taken from Silver Lake recently. Thought you'd like to know that.

The Sunday derby held by the Merrimack Valley Bass Masters was a success, with some 262 anglers on the sign-up list, but the big bass are still swimming. The carp, however, made up for the shy bass in sheer poundage.

In the bass category, the $500 first prize went to Tewksbury's Dave Lecuyer, for a bass weighing 2.36 pounds; second place and $300 was given to Dave Gagnon of Lowell for a 2.12 pounder; Chelmsford's Ron St. Jean took a $200 third place fish weighing 2.02; fourth and $100 went to Carroll Colby of Pelham, N.H., for a 1.91 bass; and Steve Lombardi of Methuen held onto the winner board with a 1.76 bass worth $75. All winners received trophies.

The carp side of the MVB event was much more fruitful. All five of the winners were over the state's 15-pound threshold for a bronze pin.

if somebody remembered to do the paperwork. The $500 top carp was a 20.08 behemoth, taken by Mike Harris of Methuen. The monster was put into a temporary tank near the weigh-in table where it became a top attraction for the day. Second and $300 was awarded to Lawrence's Mike Thompson for a 19.22 carp; third was won by Dracut's Joe Beausoleil with a 19.19 fish worth $200; Gerald Goudreau of Methuen walked away with $100 for a 15.75 carp; and Bob Blanchette of Lawrence rounded out the field with a $75 fish weighing 15.6. Again, all carp winners took home trophies as well.

Meeting the needs of a special child

Mark and Ruth Reed remember the date August 10, 1984 with a special sadness. Their son Jonathan, then just an infant, had reacted to an inoculation shot which most American parents take for granted. Jonathan was suffering from chicken pox and the doctor had prescribed the common DPT injection as a remedy for the illness.

That decision changed Jonathan's life irrevocably, as well as his parents. A month after receiving the injection, on August 10, 1984, Jonathan was diagnosed at Massachusetts General Hospital as having suffered severe brain damage in a violent reaction to the DPT.

"The change was immediate", said Jonathan's father Mark. "He stopped doing the things he used to do as an infant, like rolling over on the floor".

Today, despite a diagnosis that their son would be lucky if he ever lived past his fifth birthday, Mark and Ruth Reed, who reside at Jones Avenue in Wilmington, are raising their retarded youngster with love and dedication, and meeting head-on the daily care and major financial commitment he requires.

The Reed's routine with their son begins in the morning preparing for his school day in Andover at the Professional Center for Handicapped Children. The Town of Wilmington provides special transportation while Ruth Reed provides the elbow grease in getting her son ready for school.

"We have to lift him all the time and make sure to spoon feed him; he can't chew, so it's important that the food is soft for him", said Ruth, who noted with a look of discomfort in her eyes that Jonathan is getting heavier and heavier to lift upstairs to the family bathroom.

Then there is the constant concern the family has regarding seizures. Despite medication taken three times daily, Jonathan suffers regular seizures often resulting in injury. Mark Reed says Jonathan's EKG indicates that he actually suffers some level of seizure every minute. "He's very sensitive," said Mark referring to his son. "Sometimes after a seizure he'll begin to cry". On more than one occasion the seizures have actually caused Jonathan to hit the floor with his face, resulting in a broken nose.

The Reed family had hoped to rely on a visiting nurse for help with Jonathan's daily care. Ruth believes she may have recently suffered a hernia from lifting her son, and still has the responsibility of daughter Becky, 11, son Daniel, 3, and new born baby David who is just seven months old.

Right about now a visiting nurse would be a blessing.

"We're eligible for a visiting nurse sixteen hours weekly, but since January of 1989 we've only received about three weeks' worth of benefits. I think we're up against the budget crisis."

Ruth says that agencies which refer visiting nurses aren't interested in servicing clients who are on Medicaid because the agencies know the state isn't paying its bills.

"I've heard that the agencies are only sending nurses out to people with private insurance," said Ruth. "Since the budget crisis they seem to be avoiding Medicaid refer-als."

Meanwhile, the Reed family is watching the slow but steady completion of an addition to their house which will make caring for Jonathan a great deal easier. At a cost of about $50,000, it will provide a first floor, handicap bathroom for Jonathan, a new bedroom, and a handicap entrance complete with an $8,000 chair lift.

"He's getting too heavy even for me", said Jonathan's father Mark. And the problem has been especially acute for Ruth, who gave delivery just seven months ago to baby David and now may have suffered injury from carrying Jonathan upstairs to the family's single bathroom.

There has been plenty of anxiety in the Reed home as they face a $50,000 construction bill. "That's more than we originally paid for the house", exclaimed Mark Reed.

But thanks to the support of a community which seems to prove time and time again that everyone is family because we call the same town home, the Reeds' have received an enormous amount of financial contributions.

Over $12,000 has been donated for construction of the new addition. Everyone from neighbors and friends, to local service organizations have extended hands of generosity. Even Mark's employer, Kraft/SS Pierce, joined the cause with donations for Jonathan.

Ruth originally began her fundraising efforts for Jonathan with a letter to local developers, and within 24 hours received a response from Joe Langone.

"Joe is absolutely great", said Ruth and Mark Reed. "He's really been helping every step of the way," they said.

The Reeds are convinced that they live in a town which comes together when people are in need.

"There are some very special people in this town who always seem to show that they really care," said Ruth.

A lasting 'Lookout Tower'

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

The temperature is 80-degrees and you have been fighting the rush hour traffic out of Boston for the past 30-minutes until you have finally reached the first sign of the green hills in the Middlesex Fells Reservation. Now you can leave the cares and worries of the work day behind.

Perhaps as you drive towards exit 33 north off of Route 93, your contemplating turning off onto South Border Road for Winchester, or looking forward to pulling off for your exit in Stoneham or Reading. You might also be noticing the stone tower on the hill on the left just beyond the exit.

The tower is actually one of two that most commuters from our readership area pass. The second is on the hill overlooking the former Chesterton Company world headquarters.

However, the first is the only one that can really be seen from the highway and it has a very interesting history behind it.

The tower, sometimes called the Pine Hill Tower, is actually named the Elizur Wright Tower. It was built in 1937 as a memorial to the former Medford resident, who is known as the "Father of the Middlesex Fells Reservation (Wright is also known as the "Father of the Life Insurance Industry")."

Wright earned the title due to the work he did in the last half of the 1800's to have the area set aside as a forest preserve.

It took 52-years from Wright's death in 1885 until the tower was built. Ironically the Medford hero was to be honored the same year that the community lost another hero, Amelia Earhart, during her around the world flight.

A 1937 copy of the Medford Mercury reports that work on the tower was done by the Civilian Conservation Corps and the construction was accomplished from "rubble stone" taken from the area.

The tower was constructed along the lines of another built in the Blue Hills. Plans on file with the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) show the tower, designed by Boston landscape architects Arthur Shurtleff for the MDC, to be 25-feet high and 18-feet wide. It stands at an elevation of 243-feet above sea-level.

Dr. Joseph Valeriani, president of the Medford Historical Society, reports that the tower replaced a former fire tower that was on Rams Head Hill to the west of Pine Hill. He also said that Wright's summer place, which later became his full-time residence, was at the foot of Pine Hill. The four acre estate, was along what is now South Border Road, and included the Bellevue Pond at the base of the hill (where a parking lot is also now located).

Valeriani said that the Wright Tower was built solely as an observation tower. It is a success in that aspect. A climb to the top of the tower, even on a cloudy day, revealed a view that reached the Blue Hills to the south and and gives one a different perspective on Boston's concrete, glass and steel mountains.

Friends of the Middlesex Fells Reservation (FOF) members, Malcolm and Claire Masters of Winchester, described the view from the top of Wright's Tower. According to Malcolm, one can see Big Blue and Chickatawbut off to the southwest. Claire reports that on a clear day the view to the east extends out to Nahant and the Boston Harbor Islands.

The Masters were the ones who were able to fill in some information on the lesser known tower at Bear Hill. This 43-foot, six sided tower is built in Stoneham at an elevation of 317-feet above sea level. The tower was built by the MDC as an observation tower in 1910 and is made of steel and concrete. A look at the plans for the tower, and a personal look at the completed structure makes one feel that perhaps an early rendition of a spaceship to reach the stars was being constructed.

ROVING

DAN FERULLO

We recently returned from a vacation in Venice, Florida, and discovered an interesting phenomenon occurring down there. In spite of all the talk about rapid growth in the real estate and job markets down there, the prices of houses, still low in comparison to the northeast, have risen enough to create a glut of property being offered for sale.

We spoke to one real estate salesperson, a fellow in his mid-fifties by the name of Joe Delaronde, who told us that many real estate agents are beginning to look for creative enticements to encourage prospective buyers to sign on the dotted line.

"For instance," Joe told us, "we had one seller who was looking to unload a beautiful piece of property right near the water. To help sweeten the pot, he offered the buyer one year's slip rental at a nearby marina. The buyer happened to be a boat owner, and he jumped at the deal."

Thousands of people from Massachusetts and throughout North America will visit the 22nd annual International Antique Fire Apparatus show and muster on Saturday, June 16 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Edgewater Office Park located on the Lynnfield/Wakefield line.

Antique fire engines; some dating from the late 1800's, as well as modern fire trucks will be on display throughout the day. The event is sponsored by the Mass. Antique Fire Apparatus Association and other area buff clubs.

The full day of activity will include a parade featuring more than 200 antique and modern fire engines. This may be the largest muster of fire trucks ever held in this country. Events include: judging of best appearing apparatus, a fire flea market and a massive pumping demonstration. It should be a great day for fire buffs and the entire family.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. in front of Lynnfield High School. The route will take the trucks through Lynnfield into Wakefield and end at Edgewater Office Park (located behind the Colonial Hilton). Food will be available all day at the park and no alcoholic beverages will be sold.

A lasting lookout tower

Lookout from S-1

Bear Hill is the highest elevation in the Fells and the tower is built on the site of "Cheese Rock." According to written histories of the area, the rock was believed to have received its name when Colonial Governor John Winthrop climbed to the site in 1632 and had a lunch consisting of cheese.

Malcolm Masters reports, "I have seen Monadnock, Mount Wachusett and a few other Southern New Hampshire mountains from that tower."

A personal observation, on a hazy day, with a good pair of binoculars showed the Tobin Bridge and the coastline along Lynn and Nahant, from the top of Bear Hill.

One can only imagine what the view of the fall foliage must be like from both locations.

Both towers can easily be reached by well marked trails. If you are 43-years old, 50-pounds overweight and trying to prove you still have what it takes than the Skyline Trail (for Pine Hill) and the Dark Hollow Pond Trail (for Bear Hill) will give you your test. For those in good shape both of these trails would be an easy walk.

However, both towers are also accessible by an easy walk up moderately sloping service roads.

On Saturday, June 9, the Friends of the Middlesex Fells will be conducting a walk "Between the Towers." This hike will use the trails and roads between Wright's and Bear Hill towers and will be led by FOF member Joe Casey.

The walk will start at 9 a.m., from the Bellevue Pond parking lot (Exit 33 north or south off Route 1-93, to South Border Road). It is scheduled to take two hours. It will be cancelled if it is raining.

For more information, contact Reservation Supervisor Chip Norton at 662-5214.

ROVING

Roving from S-1

One of the secrets to coming up with these creative enticements is to know whom you're selling to. "You wouldn't offer a year's worth of fine Cuban cigars to a guy who doesn't smoke cigars," he said. "It's worth taking time out to learn a little bit about your prospective buyer. Then you make a compromise with the seller and tell him that by making the pot a little sweeter, we're going to close the deal."

Often times the seller isn't willing to make the small sacrifice necessary to close the deal. Joe said, "Because every home owner thinks his house is worth a million dollars. Then they try to sell it, and they see differently. Sometimes it is necessary to make those sacrifices in order to make a deal work. Otherwise, a house could sit on the market for a long, long time."

We found some of the other "creative enticements" to be eye-catching. For instance, Joe researched one prospective buyer and discovered he and his wife were your basic retired couple that enjoyed staying at home. "They particularly enjoyed having their children visit them from back east," Joe noted. "So we told them the price of the house, then added that the seller was willing to pay for a year's worth of maid service. To sweeten the pot, he then added a year's worth of pool maintenance. It helped to close the deal, believe it or not."

Joe once sold a house to a Miami businessman, and to help close that deal, he tossed in a free rent-a-car for one month, plus a year's subscription to Money magazine.

"This sweetening the pot thing can get out of hand," Joe indicated. "So you have to watch what you offer as pot sweeteners. For example, I had one seller so desperate to unload his house that he offered the buyer, who was a young businessman, a one year season ticket to the Orlando Magic basketball team, plus a free ride to work every day for three months. Those little pot sweeteners ended up costing the seller quite a bit of money off the top of the selling price."

We asked Joe to give us a few other examples of pot sweeteners, as he called them. "One of the most bizarre offers went to this guy who was your typical artist sort of person - he was into movie set designing for the Disney studio," he said. "The seller offered him a collection of old black and white movie videos, which he'd paid about a thousand dollars for, plus a subscription to a local dinner theatre for one year. Don't laugh. It worked."

Joe remarks that one of the most satisfying deals was closed with a dinner for two at a fancy restaurant, including a free limousine ride to and from the restaurant. "The buyers were a young couple begin to shape up for summer by attending a body composition analysis offered by the Regional Health Center in Wilmington. The Nutrition Services will schedule appointments for June 26 from 5 to 7 p.m.

purchasing a condo on the water here in Venice. The seller threw the dinner for two in at the last moment, and it worked. He spotted them as romantic types right from the start."

Joe indicated that many sellers will attempt to sweeten an offer with more traditional enticements, such as free cable tv or free services of a plumber for one year. "The problem with that," said Joe, "is that buyers don't think of those things as enticements. You might as well be telling them that the house comes with a front door."

It is much easier to spice up a deal by offering, to a sports-minded buyer, for instance, a one year's membership to a health spa. "And then toss in a year's subscription to Sports Illustrated," Joe added.

"I had one guy tell me he'd buy a condo if we threw in a year's worth of free Domino's pizzas," Joe went on. "We laughed, but then went along with the crazy idea. As a joke, we offered the guy a year's membership with Diet Workshop, also. He passed on the diet membership."

Joe recalled one seller who gave a prospective buyer, who turned out to be a movie buff, the offer of free movie passes for one year. "That deal closed," Joe said, adding, "but the seller ended up leaving his color tv set behind, too."

The most extreme case of pot sweetening occurred with a seller who offered a free roomful of furniture to a prospective buyer in an effort to unload a expensive home in Sarasota, which is just north of Venice.

"This guy was so anxious to sell that he also offered to have an interior designer come in to do the arranging," Joe said. "Needless to say, the buyer took the seller up on the offer. I think the seller ended up chopping about five or six grand off the top of his profit."

Joe added that the seller was willing to take that loss rather than possibly not unload the property for some time. "Sometimes the owners are so anxious to sell that they'll offer anything just to get rid of the property," Joe said. "The owners will even go so far as to offer to pay a portion of the real estate tax, or offer to pay the electric and phone bills for a summer."

As we were about to finish our conversation, we asked Joe if he could offer us any property that was currently being "sweetened" with enticements. "Sure," he said instantly. "I've got a house for sale now that, as part of the offer, the owner will toss in free round-trip tickets to any city in the states, plus a free membership to a tanning salon."

We questioned the membership to the tanning salon. "Even in Florida, there are times when the sun doesn't shine," Joe said.

We told Joe we'd think about the offer and then get back to him.

Body Composition Analysis

This painless examination will measure your actual amount of fat, lean muscle and body water. According to Julie Daly, R.D. Nutritionist, "Maintaining muscle mass while losing body fat is the goal of all fitness and weight loss programs. Monitoring body composition helps assure that lost weight is fat and not muscle."

Victims of frequent weight loss and regain cycles often find their metabolic rate lowered due to losses in lean muscle. Athletes who need to preserve muscle also find the computerized body composition data a useful part of their fitness routine. For the average 40 year old woman a normal body fat is 27% while for a 40 year old man, it is 19%.

Trained nutritionists use the BIAC bio-impedance measurement to assess body composition. In less than five minutes a two-page individualized report is printed. The Nutritionist then interprets the findings with each client on an individual basis.

Volunteers needed for various projects in Mass. state forests

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management (DEM) is looking for groups to volunteer for various projects in state forests and parks this season. Picking up litter, marking trails, revitalizing picnic areas and providing support to facilities are examples of how volunteers can help.

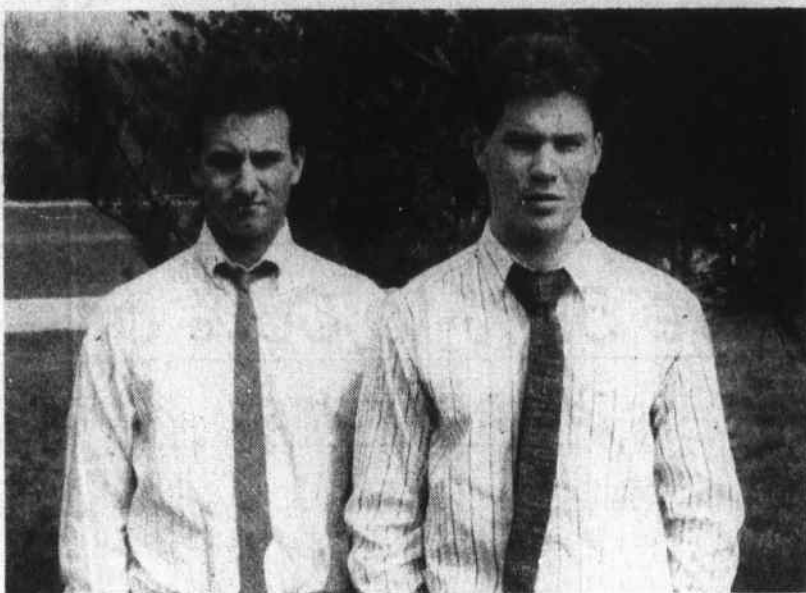

"We have always been grateful for the volunteer work done in our forests and parks," said DEM Commissioner Richard E. Kendall. "Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, friends groups, corporations and people from all walks of life have traditionally provided essential volunteer support to maintain and improve our parks."

With the current state fiscal situation it is now more crucial than ever that groups volunteer for projects.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

--"A child may be very intelligent, musically talented or artistically gifted," says Wakefield Director of Physical Education Paula Mullen, "but unless he or she understands the importance of health and fitness, those talents could be wasted."

Circulation was up in the Wakefield Schools recently in celebration of National Physical Education Month during which a "Fit to Achieve" week took place for all students in grades K-6.

Baseball math, scorekeeping, nutrition, fitness-related biographies and poetry, and Olympics history were only part of the package put together by Mullen and other Wakefield staff members. Activities also included a "walk across Massachusetts" and one "across the country," parachute day, a most healthy snack contest among classes, an all-school track meet, the creation of relevant posters and collages, and school-wide aerobics "run" by Joie Edson. During the week, teachers were encouraged to wear warm-up suits and sneakers.

"The main objective of this program was to stress the importance of fitness and physical education," says Mullen. "We also want students to understand that health and fitness are interrelated with all aspects of life - not just physical class."

--"Parents Only" and then kids, too were invited to participate in the recent 1990 four-evening Woburn PTO Drug Awareness Program.

Evening one - for parents only - featured police awareness information with Inspector William Coakley speaking about DARE and Inspector Jewer speaking on the scope of the Woburn drug problem; followed by the Improbable Players.

The second evening for parents and grade K-2 students featured the DARE officers and the Improbable Players.

The next week, DARE officers and students, representatives from the Caulfield Center and the Improbable Players made a presentation to parents and grades 3-5 students.

And the last session - for parents only - included presentations by Dr. Treadway on "Drugs: Issues for Parents and Young People"; District Attorney Harshbarger; and Police Chief Phil Mahoney.

--The Wakefield Lodge of Elks recently honored Stoneham High senior Karl Lee as an Elks Teenager of the Month.

Lee is a featured soloist in the Spartan Chorus, tri-captain of the math team and treasurer of the National Honor Society. In addition to receiving academic awards, he has been involved in the drama club and school newspaper.

--Lynnfield Middle School math teacher and former Wakefield teacher Joyce Jankun of Woburn is the new assistant coordinator of College Academy at Haverhill's Bradford College.

College Academy is a three-week academic enrichment program for "bright, academically talented" children, grades 4-8. Last summer, more than 900 children participated in College Academy at various colleges throughout the state.

The program philosophy is "learning is fun."

Host family sought for German student

A 17-year-old young man from Germany has his suitcase packed and is ready to come to the local area but has no place to stay. Andreas Patis also has his love of tennis (ranked #2 in Hamburg), volleyball, basketball and computers which he hopes to bring with him here - IF he is invited.

Dick and Joan Leaver of Westford are the local area representative for ASSE International Student Exchange. They have a full file on Andreas including photos and letters. Dick and Joan hope they do not have to tell the young man they have no home for him.

If a local family might be interested in hosting this young man they should contact Dick and Joan Leaver, 9 Leland Road, Westford 01886 at (508) 692-6655 or call tollfree 800-333-3802.

Adult alcoholic families seminar

A therapy group for adults who grew up in a family affected by alcoholism or other distress will be held on Fridays beginning in May. Groups meet at Shawmut Counseling, 1 Courthouse Lane, Chelmsford.

Szifra Birke, a certified clinical mental health and alcohol counselor, will lead the group. Birke is the co-author of "Private Practice." A revised version of this book will be released by Random House in December under the new title: "Together We Heal: A Real Life Portrait of an Interactive Group for Adult Children."

Birke says, "Too often parents do not talk about what is really going on at home. Growing up in a troubled family means silence, denial and avoidance of issues. This adversely affects people in adulthood."

Adult children can move from surviving to thriving."

Pre-registration and two individual meetings are required before group begins. For more information about this group, other groups for adult children, a group for helping professionals, or individual and couple counseling, call Szifra Birke at (508) 441-9896.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Babe Ruth hit 714 home runs in his major league baseball career. He was a superb athlete, a compassionate gentleman, a friend and hero to the youth of America. He was never too tired or busy to sign autographs and always doffed his hat to acknowledge the cheers of the thousands of fans as he rounded the bases for another home run. This warm-hearted being was idolized here in America as well as in Japan, not only for his power at the bat, but for the example he gave every poor young lad in the country and the world. An orphan boy made it to the top and they could do the same in any field they chose.

Babe Ruth finished his major league playing days with the Boston Braves. In one inning playing against the Cincinnati Reds, the once agile, flawless baseball great made several errors. His bad throws were responsible for most of the runs scored against the Braves. The once baseball hero walked off the field slowly, discouraged and broken-hearted.

To make matters worse, some of the fans who once idolized him raised their voices with thousands of others in a rising crescendo of boos as he headed for the dugout. At that moment, a young lad jumped down onto the playing field, then ran up to the Babe with tears streaming down his face and threw his arms around the knees of the man that was his hero. He wanted to share in the sorrow that was apparent in the Babe's face. This great man of baseball, who was admired by millions of fans for years, picked up the young lad and hugged him. He then put him down, put his hand on the boy's shoulder and walked with him off the field.

There was a stunned silence in the stands. The crowd became singularly penitent. Misty eyes appeared as strong men wiped away tears. They had just witnessed a miracle of human nature, a young man sharing the humility of a fallen warrior. It was enough to change their hatred and frustrations to sympathy and love for the greatest of them all - "The Bambino" Babe Ruth.

Mr. friend, Jon Norton, recited a saying attributed to Mary Baker Eddy - "There is no power apart from God. Omnipotence has all power and to acknowledge any other power is to dishonor God." Kathy went on a trip to Greece last year with her Garden Club members. She posed for a snapshot in front of the fallen pillars of an ancient Greek Temple. "Don't get the rented car in the picture," she warned the photographer, "or that idiot, the Woodchipper, will think that I ran into one of these pillars and knocked it over."

I said to Bob Burns, "My wife, Kathy, doesn't appreciate me, does yours?" "I don't know," Bob said, "I never heard Martha mention your name!" Folks, my father and I built houses in the Middlesex East area the old fashioned way - one board, stud or beam at a time. So, I don't have much faith in some of these overnight built homes. When my cousin Michael Quaganti married the lovely Florence they looked at one of those "hurry up built houses." Michael tapped on one of the walls and said, "This wall doesn't sound so sturdy." "Of course it doesn't," the builder explained, "we haven't got the wallpaper on yet."

Woodchips congratulates the Massachusetts State Police on the following promotions - Deputy Superintendent Charles F. Henderson, Lt. Colonel Thomas J. Kennedy and my personal friend, Lt. Colonel Edward J. Cronin of Reading. The respect and admiration that Woodchips has for this distinguished and elite police force is well known: I am proud that Commissioner of Public Safety William McCabe is a brother Townie (Charlestown). A special "Thank You" to Public Information Officer, Corporal Joseph Howley for being a long-time fan of this column.

My cousin, Charlie McDermott, was an engineer for the B&M Railroad. My Aunt Nora nicknamed him "Choo Choo Charlie." Paul Rao asked me, "Woodchipper, what did you do with the scarecrow I saw in your garden last summer?" "For crying out loud," I exclaimed, "that wasn't a scarecrow, that was Kathy picking tomatoes!" Some Boston taxi drivers drive by this rule, "Red Light - Stop. Yellow Light - Floor it. Green Light - Proceed with caution." Driving schools instruct their students, "Stop on Red, go on Green and slow down when I turn White."

Donald Bicchieri and his lovely wife, Diane, are owners of "Apple Plus," a wholesale distributor of Washington State apples. Many of us perhaps have never realized how important apples have been in our history. First, in our Bible Study Class we learned that Adam and Eve were tempted by an apple. In modern times, Sir Isaac Newton discovered the Law of Gravity (when he got hit on the head by a falling apple), and I'm sure many of us remember bringing an apple to our teacher - but - I recall sending one or two "bananas!"

I received a letter recently from one of them, Miss Sullivan, now retired and living in California. She said "the happiest day of my life was when you graduated. I live in San Francisco near the Bay. If you come to California, "drop in" preferably at high tide!

Anyone who can swallow a pill while drinking from a water cooler deserves to get well. Summer is here at last - Kelly's Creme is open and Flo Savage, the genial manager, is ready to serve you.

Personality Winners - Arthur Nelson, Bill Distaula, Bill Smith and Joe Kennedy, Jr., all of Wakefield; Bill Donovan, Joe Pelletier and Wendy Rebidue, all of Lynnfield; Presiding Justice Francis P. Cullen of the Woburn District Court, Bill Behnke, Rev. Leo X. Lynch, Rev. Hugh Desmond, Jennifer Koczela, Laurie Sutherland, Irene Ehl and John Flaherty, all of Woburn; Mildred Worthington, Scott Stewart, Jim McGeehan, John Szczepanski and Tom Kline, all of Winchester; Anna Mae Arsenaault, Joan Daya, Michael Chan, Alicia DiDonato, Lin-Chi Yen, Mark Tarello and Andrew Norton, all of Stoneham; Gus and Margaret Strangie (Woodchips congratulates you on your 50th wedding anniversary), Karen Thorn, Rotarians Warren Pearce and Brian Wood, Michael Casey and Robin McDonough, all of North

Reading; Don and Maryann Lee and Shawn, Maureen McGurn, Suzie Johnson and Shirley McGurn, all of Tewksbury; Joan Marsi, Theresa Martin, Frank Mazzoni and Ed Sargent, all of Wilmington; Lee Preble, Al Fullman, Lillian Gerbrands and Kenny and Terrie Kirkland, all of Burlington; George Richards, John Austin, and Dick Midwood and his lovely wife, Lois, all of Reading. Whenever I see a fat, out-of-shape dog, I generally see a fat, out-of-shape owner holding the other end of the leash.

Super Star is Nancy Gonzales of Woburn.

Free tree pruning guide

How a tree is pruned in its first few years of life will affect its shape, strength and even its life span.

An illustrated, easy-to-follow guide called "How to Prune Young Shade Trees" has been prepared for homeowners. It can be obtained free of charge by writing The National Arbor Day Foundation.

The How To Prune guide includes step-by-step illustrations showing how proper pruning in the early years of a tree's life can save money in the long run and result in safer, more beautiful, healthy, easy-to-maintain trees.

This valuable booklet is filled with illustrations showing you how to make a pruning cut - how to prune for desired form - how to strengthen your tree by removing certain branches - how to maintain the tree's health by removing trouble spots - when to leave temporary lower branches, and when to cut them.

The booklet even shows how to hold a pair of pruning shears and how to make pruning cuts at the proper angle.

You'll learn how to shape and guide a shade tree when it's young so that it's tall, straight, strong, and healthy when it's old.

The design of the booklet makes it easy to browse through to pick up tips. You'll discover why tree paint isn't necessary, even on large cuts, how to select and care for pruning tools, how to prune according to the tree's function.

To obtain your free copy of this valuable booklet, send your name and address to: How to Prune, National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, Nebraska 68410.
